

The Nuclear Threat in South Asia

Speaker: Sadia Tasleem

- PhD Student, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada
- Lecturer, Dept. of Defense & Strategic Studies, Quaid-i-Azam University, Islamabad, Pakistan

Open to Public
No
Reservations
Required

Language:
English

Date: 15 January (WED) 2020 / Time: 16:40 -18:15

Venue: SK110, Karasuma Campus, Doshisha University ( Via SKYPE)

The volatile and unstable region of South Asia is fast witnessing a race towards an escalation in military and nuclear rivalry. The possibility of nuclear dangers and confrontation are growing between India and Pakistan. Nuclear risks range from obscurity of conventional and nuclear means of delivery; confusion and tensions; deploying new types of nuclear capabilities; to mistrust and absence of strategic dialogue. How is the nuclear threat evolving between India and Pakistan as tension is simmering? In the absence of mechanism of disarmament and minimizing risks, what does nuclear threat mean to the stability of the region and the world?

